Meet Our Family Medicine Residents

Zongyou Ji, DO Class of 2027

ABOUT ME

Hi! My name is Zongyou “Tony” Ji and I was born in China. At the age of twenty I moved to the United States on a student visa to pursue college at the University of Pittsburgh, where I majored in Biology and minored in Chemistry. Following college, I returned to China and worked in sales for a private biotech company; this experience motivated me to further education in medical science. My search for a medical school took me back to the United States, where I attended the Marian University College of Osteopathic Medicine in Indianapolis, IN. Though my education was interrupted by the pandemic, life changed for the better. I officially became a permanent resident of Indiana in 2023 and call myself a Hoosier with pride.

WHY CHOOSE DEACONESS?

Coming to Deaconess was an easy choice for me. This program is unopposed in quality of training, is dually accredited, close to family, and filled with truly wonderful people that impressed me during the interviews. I am thrilled and honored to be a part of this amazing team. Inspired by past work experience, my biggest passion is healthcare entrepreneurship. I look forward to becoming an excellent primary care physician and improving the well-being of rural communities.

HOBBIES/INTERESTS

Outside of medicine I am a proud daddy to my 2-year-old son. I enjoy weightlifting, basketball, options trading and cooking Chinese food.
